WHAT ARE YOUR HIRING RISKS?

According to the respected Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM):

- 61% of employers surveyed “often” or “sometimes” find inaccuracies in applicant résumés
- 86% said that finding inaccuracies is either “important” or “very important”

And according to 2002 data collected by a major human resources firm:

- 18% of applicants supplied false Social Security numbers
- 33% used fictitious or incorrect names
- 32% lived at addresses not reported on their applications
- 30% lied about their criminal records
- 39% misrepresented their education
